

Reaction to Michel Alon's Case Presentation

The case presentation was fascinating and it prompted me to ask many questions. Would you be prepared to share with us in more detail the course of this interesting treatment, Michel? Could we see some of the drawings that accompanied the girl's processing? How did you get the older Shani to take care of Shani the baby? Was this inspired by April Steele's Core Imaginal Nurturing? April helps the adult client who has early deficits to look after themselves as a baby. Did Shani take care of this infant as a young girl or did she use her mother to do that? Was the mother's narrative about the operation of one year old Shani created after Shani had spontaneous memories of the operation or did you decide to introduce it after your intake? Was the mother present at all the sessions? Was the story of the dybbuk developed during the treatment? Did Shani draw it or did she relate to it in any other way?

My questions show interest and curiosity in your presentation and also reflect a desire to encourage responses from readers to all the material we are presenting.
